ACCESS STUDIES AND ADMISSION TO THE FACULTY OF GRADUATE STUDIES

Admissions Committee Chair Dr. Berger recalled the discussion at the March 2008 Senate meeting about whether grades for courses taken under Access Studies could be used in the calculation of an admission average for admission to the Faculty of Graduate Studies as well applied as credit toward a graduate program (Minutes of Senate, pp. 07/08 140-1). Following consultation with the Faculty of Graduate Studies, Dr. Berger confirmed that courses taken under Access Studies were not normally included in the calculation of admission averages. In the special cases where such courses were included in average calculation, those courses became ineligible for transfer to a graduate program.

Remarks from the Chair and Related Questions

BUDGET UPDATE

The President reported that the March 12 provincial government budget cut of 2.62 percent to operating grants for all British Columbia public post-secondary institutions had come as a surprise. The UBC Okanagan budget had been further reduced by 313 student seats. The President acknowledged that the budget had included some areas of modest targeted growth for graduate students and some professional health programs. The cut had been particularly concerning in light of earlier written commitments that funding for BC universities would remain stable over a three-year period. The University remained in active discussions with the provincial government regarding the budget reduction.

One justification for the reduction was a reported failure to meet seat growth targets. The President stated that BC universities, however, had met the targets set for them. In the case of UBC, a modest shortfall in projected growth at UBC Okanagan was accommodated for by increased enrolment growth at the Vancouver campus. BC university presidents had expressed concern that perhaps the decision to reduce the budget had been based on misleading information. Plans were underway to schedule a meeting of university presidents with the Minister of Advanced Education and the Minister of Finance.

As a result of this sudden budgetary uncertainty, the President had decided to delay his submission of the University's proposed budget to the Board of Governors from April to June 2008. Faculties and Departments would be instructed to proceed as they had previously planned for the 2008/2009 fiscal year, with the resulting shortfall to be absorbed on a one-time basis by allocation of one-time surplus funds. The President had expressed concern to the government that absorbing a cut of this size (approximately $12 million for UBC Vancouver and $4 million for UBC Okanagan) on a permanent basis would entail making cuts to academic programs. Specifically in regard to UBC Okanagan, a permanent cut would endanger the fulfillment of a promise for a full university campus with a wide range of programs for the Okanagan region.

There had been discussions about demographic shifts affecting student enrolments in the province. Some institutions had adjusted their minimum entrance requirements in response to falling enrolments, and some colleges were operating at less than full capacity. These factors had drawn attention to the entire provincial postsecondary education sector. The President pointed out that UBC had maintained its admission averages, but that the University would need to work even harder in the following years to compete as an attractive destination for outstanding students.

MEETING WITH CHAIRS OF SENATE COMMITTEES

The President reported that he was scheduled to meet the following day with Chairs of Senate Committees to discuss ways to ensure a robust and fruitful role for the Senate within the University.

TREK 2010

The President indicated that the University would soon undertake a significant planning process as Trek 2010 neared the end of its planned life span. The University community would be asked to think about its aspirations for the future of UBC. A steering committee was to be established to manage the visioning process. The President stated that he expected that the Senate and its Committees would play a central role.

PROPOSED DEVELOPMENT CAMPAIGN

The President reported that he would soon submit a proposal to the Board of Governors seeking authorization to create a comprehensive development campaign to address the gap resulting from the University's funding needs growing faster than could be supported by tuition fees and government grant funding. A preliminary case statement would be made available for comment.

AMS REFERENDUM RESULTS

The President expressed his delight at the results of the recent SUB Renewal student referendum. Students had voted in favour of a new student fee that would generate up to $80 million to fund the renewal of the Student Union Building. President Toope noted that this constituted the largest single cash gift ever received by the University and that he looked forward to working closely with the Alma Mater Society on the SUB Renewal and University Square projects.

Issues of Broad Academic Interest

UBC OKANAGAN GOVERNANCE UPDATE

As part of a series of discussion topics of broad academic interest, the Agenda Committee had invited two representatives of UBC Okanagan to update the Vancouver Senate on the growth and governance of UBC Okanagan. Vice-President Farrar introduced the following invited guest speakers:

1. Dr. Doug Oworm, Deputy Vice-Chancellor and Vice-President, Academic & Research, UBC Okanagan.
2. Dr. Jan Cioe, Associate Professor of Psychology and elected faculty representative of the Faculty of Arts & Sciences to the Okanagan Senate.

The Chair was pleased to recognize both guest speakers.

Highlights of Deputy Vice-Chancellor Oworm's presentation were as follows:

- The division of the former Okanagan University College into Okanagan College and UBC Okanagan had been controversial. A great deal of time, energy, and money had been required to establish UBC Okanagan, and there had been preliminary questions about how the new campus would fit into UBC as an established institution and whether the creation of the new campus would effectively dilute the UBC brand.
- Three years after its establishment, UBC Okanagan was well placed to make important contributions to the UBC system. While capitalizing on the tremendous strengths of the UBC name, UBC Okanagan aimed to take particular advantage of its smaller scale to create a transformative undergraduate student experience.
- UBC Okanagan had opened in July 2005 with a mandate to expand its enrolment by 2 800 students to a total of 7 500 students by 2010/2011.

- An expansion of this size had required massive investments in capital development, including $300 million for new buildings.
- The campus' operating budget had grown from approximately $40 million to approximately $77 million.
- Despite recent cuts to the provincial operating grant, UBC Okanagan was proceeding to hire 30 new faculty and some new staff during the following year.
- A UBC Okanagan branch of the distributed UBC medical school program was planned for 2011.
- By virtue of having an independent Senate, UBC Okanagan had assumed responsibility for its academic programs.
- Faculty hiring practices, promotion and tenure rules, and a commitment to research excellence were common to both campuses within the UBC system.
- While always considering what matters in the Okanagan region, UBC Okanagan planned to establish for itself national and international significance in postsecondary education.
- Faculty and staff recruitment initiatives had been tremendously successful, with top researchers and teachers choosing to apply in significant numbers.
- Although the lowest competitive average for admission to a UBC Okanagan program was 75 percent, the average across programs was more than 80 percent.
- 40% of new UBC Okanagan students were from the Okanagan region, with 25% from the Lower Mainland, and 15 percent from the rest of British Columbia. 20% came from outside the province.

Highlights from Dr. Cioe's presentation were as follows:

- Dr. Cioe had relocated from Prince George to Kelowna to accept an appointment at Okanagan University College (OUC) at a time when the new university college was under the direct tutelage of UBC.
- Many OUC programs had been based directly on UBC curricula. As OUC became more independent, its programs diverged somewhat from those at UBC.
- Admitting large numbers of undergraduate students, and creating some large undergraduate class sections, enabled the University to fund the education of graduate students.
- There had been some concerns within the OUC community about joining the UBC system, but there had also proven to be some great benefits, e.g., the ability to attract top faculty.
- Okanagan Senators felt that they had the opportunity to do something special and different at UBC Okanagan, and would not be silenced on matters that they perceived as essential.
- Building on the traditions established by the Vancouver Senate, the Okanagan Senate looked at issues from the Okanagan perspective, creating a healthy diversity of opinion.

- Some issues were common to both campuses, e.g., the need for a robust writing/communications requirement.
- The current inability of students to move freely between campuses had caused concern. Dr. Cioe expressed frustration that UBC Okanagan students are evaluated for transfer to Vancouver no differently than students from BC colleges.
- With two Senates, academic programs would undoubtedly be different on each campus.
- Mutual respect had developed over the previous three years, and Dr. Cioe encouraged Vancouver Senators to continue to consider the potential value in the perspectives of their Okanagan colleagues.

DISCUSSION

Dr. Dennison drew attention to a former provincial government promise to open a fully independent university in Kelowna, noting that many people in the region had not forgotten. He asked whether Deputy Vice-Chancellor Ooram could envision a University of Kelowna. Dr. Ooram replied that he did not see separation from the UBC system as a part of the natural evolution of UBC Okanagan. He felt that the location of UBC Okanagan within the system was stable, and that the campus already enjoyed sufficient autonomy. He stated a preference for moving toward a model similar to the University of California. The Deputy Vice-Chancellor stated that it would be a mistake to create a second-tier university in the Okanagan region.

Dr. Windsor-Liscombe described the two campuses as “two solitudes” and reflected on ways in which collaboration might be increased. Deputy Vice-Chancellor Ooram suggested that some of these discussions ought to begin at the Faculty level. There were challenges around developing protocols and securing funding for the many interesting opportunities, e.g., faculty exchanges, sharing graduate supervision, research collaboration.

Mr. Lee requested clarification about whether students could attend the other campus under a student exchange arrangement. Dr. Cioe responded that Senate Committees were working toward mechanisms for transferring courses between campuses, but that there remained significant challenges at the level of program requirements. Students planning to transfer between cam-poses would require good advising support and would need to exercise particular care in course selection.

In response to a question from Mr. Lee, Deputy Vice-Chancellor Oworm stated that the recent budget reduction for UBC Okanagan represented a slowing of growth, rather than an actual cut. Although the campus had decided to maintain its course for the current year with respect to faculty hiring, persistent budget cuts would affect UBC Okanagan programs. President Toope added that UBC Okanagan programs were being built with the assumption that funding and enrolments would meet original targets.

The President thanked Deputy Vice-Chancellor and Dr. Cioe for their presentations.

REVOCATION OF OFFERS OF ADMISSION

The Committee had circulated the following report for information.

At its March 26 meeting, the Senate Admissions Committee met with delegates of the Provost's Office to discuss the revocation of offers of admission made to applicants to undergraduate programs at the University. Current practice is that offers of admission are not rescinded unless the applicant's overall admission average falls below the published University minimum average for admission eligibility. Following extensive discussion, the Senate Admissions Committee supports the continuation of the current practice for the 2008 admission cycle; that offers of admission made to applicants to undergraduate programs* who meet the published University minimum, meet program requirements (including provincial exams) and have graduated from high school normally be considered final offers that will not be revoked.

The Senate Admissions Subcommittee on the Review of UBC Undergraduate Admission Policies will consider the issue of revocation of offers in a broader context and make recommendations to the Senate Admissions Committee for the 2009 admission cycle.

* For the purposes of the revocation of offers of admission, undergraduate programs do not include those that formally require post-secondary study prior to admission. Examples include but are not limited to the Doctor of Dental Medicine (DMD), Doctor of Medicine (MD), Bachelor of Laws (LLB/JD) and the Bachelor of Education (B.Ed.) programs.

PROGRESS REPORT

Ad Hoc Committee on Writing and Communication Skills

Committee Chair Dr. Paul Harrison presented the report.

FINAL COMMITTEE REPORT

Dr. P. G. Harrison	}	That the Report of the ad hoc Committee on Writing and Communication Skills be received.
Mr. Brady

Carried by consent.

Dr. P. G. Harrison	}	That Recommendation 1 through 9 contained in pages 7 and 8 of the Report of the ad hoc Committee on Writing and Communication Skills be approved.
Ms. Friesen

The recommendations for approval were as follows:

1. That all undergraduate degree programs submit to the Senate Curriculum Committee - in time for consideration for publication in the 2009-2010 print version of the UBC Vancouver Calendar - a statement (of 200-300 words) of the nature of communication in the discipline, the value of acquiring general and discipline-specific communication skills, and the characteristics of courses that would provide opportunities for the acquisition of those communication skills, i.e., courses with appropriate learning outcomes and instructional practices that include feedback before summative evaluation of communication abilities occurs;
2. That all undergraduate degree programs audit their course offerings with the aim of identifying "communication courses" that support the development of communication skills as defined in that program's new Calendar statement; that each program submits to the Senate Curriculum Committee a list of such communication courses; that the Senate Curriculum Committee recommend to Senate for inclusion in the program's Calendar entry the list of those courses that meet with their approval; and

- that said process be completed in time for production of the 2009-2010 print version of the UBC Vancouver Calendar;
3. That the Senate Curriculum Committee be directed to report to Senate on the participation of undergraduate degree programs in recommendations 1 and 2 at least annually;
 4. That the Faculty of Arts continue to offer a first-year course accessible to students across the University that provides instruction in writing suitable for university studies and that other faculties and schools be encouraged to collaborate with the Faculty of Arts on the design of the curriculum in that course to better suit the needs of students in their programs;
 5. That the Faculty of Arts be encouraged to pilot ASTU 150 and writing-intensive courses at second-year and above and that the Faculty of Applied Science be encouraged to pilot APSC 176 and that both faculties provide Senate with a report by March 2010 including data that can inform future budget allocation decisions at the level of the faculty and the university. Other faculties are also encouraged to initiate changes consistent with the recommendations in Appendix I as opportunities arise and to provide Senate with reports;
 6. That faculties and schools be encouraged to use resources such as the Teaching & Learning Enhancement Fund and the Teaching & Academic Growth unit to improve the effectiveness of instruction in communication; and that the Provost be encouraged to put priority on the allocation of discretionary funds to this effort;
 7. That the Vancouver sub-committee of the Council of Senates Budget Committee be asked to take up the issue of decision-making and priority-setting with regard to campus-wide academic initiatives in general as well as this initiative specifically;
 8. That Senate request the Provost to put priority on funding for a Writing and Communication Requirement in future budget discussions with the goal of implementing the proposal for a Writing and Communication Requirement as detailed in Recommendations A through I (Appendix I), and that the Provost report to Senate annually regarding progress towards implementing these Recommendations; and
 9. That, having completed its responsibilities to the best of its abilities given the realities of financial constraint, the Ad Hoc Committee on Writing and Communication Skills be discharged.

DISCUSSION

Dr. Harrison clarified that, while the Committee was seeking approval of the above-mentioned recommendations, the report also contained for information a separate set of recommendations (appearing in Appendix 1 of the Committee's report) that the Committee hoped that the Provost & Vice-President Academic would keep in mind in future.

Ad Hoc Committee on Writing and Communication Skills, continued

Dr. Harrison stated that the goal of the Committee's recommendations was to raise the profile of writing and communications skills in undergraduate programs. He acknowledged that implementation of all of the Committee's recommendations would be costly, and was hopeful that the University would consider this a worthy investment of resources. When the same issues had been considered in the past, implementation costs had been considered prohibitive. The Committee hoped that the recommendations for approval represented a small step toward improvement without creating an undue financial burden. Although the Committee was pleased to have made progress, members would have preferred to propose much more action in the short term. The Committee asked that the Provost keep this matter high on the agenda during budgetary discussions with deans and principals.

In response to a question from Dr. Bluman, Dr. Harrison stated that the Committee had not undertaken an assessment of existing courses to determine how many would qualify as writing-intensive. Dr. Harrison noted that communication and writing skills could be developed in a number of ways in the different disciplines, and that some programs already had such courses in place. In response to a further question, Dr. Harrison confirmed that the core requirement was for written communication, although certain programs might require certain oral communication competencies.

In response to a question from Dr. MacEntee about the apparent broadness of Recommendation 7, Dr. Harrison stated that the present proposal was just one example of a campus-wide initiative that could not be funded to the desired extent, and that the Council of Senates Budget Committee could possibly assist in this regard. President Toope agreed that, given the University's Faculty structure, it was difficult to identify champions for campus-wide initiatives in budgetary discussions.

Mr. McLean expressed concern that the Committee's recommendations might hinder interdisciplinarity or limit focus on the necessary writing skills within a discipline. Dr. Harrison clarified that the Committee viewed a common core of skills as essential for all students. The Committee had also considered writing within disciplines and groups of disciplines. He was optimistic that implementation would proceed in a positive way.

Dr. Thorne spoke in favour of the proposal, noting that programs in the health disciplines shared a common commitment to embedding interprofessional communication in their curricula.

In response to a question from Mr. Frederick about why it had taken so long for recommendations to come before the Senate, Dr. Harrison clarified that he could not speak for other committees that had considered the issue. The current Committee had built upon the good work of one of the previous committees.

Dr. Harrison pointed out that the Curriculum Committee would need to report back to Senate as implementation proceeded. The Committee asked that Senators continue to discuss these issues to ensure success of the proposal.

In response to a question about the possible impact on students who transfer between Faculties, Dr. Harrison stated that the receiving Faculty or program would need to make a decision about what would be appropriate. The Committee did not view its recommendations as restricting students' ability to move between programs, although the Curriculum Committee might consider this issue in its monitoring of implementation.

The motion was put and carried.
